

Abstract

A cleansing product with an outstanding in-use performance comprising an excellent distribution of a detergent as well as an intensive fresh odour is provided by a product comprising a granulated composition consisting of a core material consisting of particles of a mixture of effervescent material and acid substance, said particles being dispersed within a matrix of non-aqueous binder material.